

Treatment Plant Has A Wait Problem

In a memo dated January 23, 2007, Dave Krol, Director of Operations and Maintenance at the Suffolk County Waste Water Treatment Plant at Bergen Point announced lane closings on the road to and from their dump site.

The changes, prompted by construction at the facility, will cause traffic to flow in only one direction at any given time. The direction of travel, in or out of the plant, will be controlled by newly installed traffic signals.

In addition to the lights, speed restrictions will be in effect through the work areas and truckers are advised to expect significant delays entering and exiting the facility. The construction project is scheduled to last approximately nine months.
